We fired up our old red F-150 at 5am and launched out into the early morning darkness. The two young men thought that Thelma and I were just kidding about the five-hour journey mostly off road to minister to 70 children in a secluded mountain village. One of these guys even dressed for a beach outreach. “J” the Uber driver, age 23 and “E”, age 16, an Ex-addict and high school drop-out could not believe that we were forging mountain streams and climbing mountains passes as deep powdered dust layered our trail. Our tires spun and flung a dense tan cloud that enveloped our vehicle and blanketed our trail.

Both young men have recently responded to the street outreach of a fellow Mexican pastor with whom we have a close working relationship. One of these young men was raised by a single mother. He was 8 yrs old when his father went to the United States and started another family. The other young man was raised by a mother who was a woman of the streets, and his father worked in the drug trade. This is not too uncommon of a profession for a broad sector of the Mexican society. The drug industry permeates the culture. Our job on the other hand is to seek and to save that which is lost.

We began to get to know one another along the journey and the more we talked the more I began to realize they were fresh off the street and they both confessed that they had not put their faith in Christ. I laid out an argument for Christ as God; the savior who came in human flesh. After getting answers to their questions, they prayed with me to receive Him as Lord and Savior. celebrate the mission in the mountains of making disciples of seventy kids. The young men were costumed as popular characters. “J” was dressed out as Beto and “E” costumed as Pepo. They were superb and a smash with the children.

Thank you for making it possible to reach these children and these young men for the Kingdom of God.
