The Amazon River teems with life and carries the hope of life to all it touches. It is the largest source of fresh water on the planet, one fifth of all the fresh water in the world flows into it's banks. For the people of the Amazon, their lives evolve around the river. It supplies them with fish to eat, fertile top soil and irrigation to grow their crops, and a highway of water as their primary means of transportation.

The river is also the conduit that carries the Good News of God's love, just as the Gospel traveled down the Roman roads of the Apostle Paul's day. The Amazon takes modern day Apostles and missionaries to villages that have no gospel witness in them. It is my great privilege to share in the training and development of these courageous Peruvian men and women. Jose Arimborgo, a modern day Apostle, is training and sending out Peruvian missionaries into villages all along the Amazon to plant churches in virgin territory.

One of these church planters that I have had the honor of working alongside is Teresa China. She and her husband are Peruvian Missionaries to the tribal people along the border of Ecuador and Peru. They accepted Christ under the ministry of Jose when he established a church in their village. Ten years later, they moved to Iquitos to study in Pastor Arimborgo's "School of Missions" and were sent out to plant churches. They themselves are of the Ketchua Indian tribe and have established six churches among their own people and one church among the Kandoshi Indians.

Pastor Randy Barr ministering at the Mission training school which now uses our video Bible school curriculum thanks to the gift of a T.V.

Seven months ago, when I was last with them, those working in this missionary movement planted 60 new churches, paddling their canoes and hitching rides on boat buses. They have now established approximately 180 churches that bear the name of Iglesia Evangelica Libre, a fellowship of churches that Jose founded. We are working along side of Pastor Arimborgo by providing video Bible School curriculum. We want to thank all of you who support this ministry for making this possible! I want to give special thanks to Fountain of Life Church and Pastor Randy Barr for their contribution toward the purchase of a 32" television.
