Jesus said "I have other sheep which are not of this fold..." in John 10:16. Some who believe in such things like to say that Jesus was referring to aliens on other planets. Well, I feel as if I landed in one of those "out of this world" places. La Paz Bolivia is the world's highest capital city rising 3,600 meters among snow capped glaziers. It possesses rugged beauty. The city itself groans under the weight of suffering and poverty. It is also a city that is very much tied to it's ancient Andean past.

Venders and beggars chant all day and all night long. My spirit was very vexed as I heard their desperate cries. My heart was broken to see the many who sleep under plastic tarps on the sidewalks. I wanted to understand the soul and thinking of the Aymara people in order to reach them with the gospel, so I traveled to Tiwanaku. There, I began to understand the ancient ways and beliefs that darken their minds. Grace explained to me the history of her people and expressed the conflicts of her own personal beliefs. Torn between the Aymara teaching and her Catholicism, she expressed confusion and bitterness. I talked to her and explained to her the truths of the Gospel. She accepted Christ as her personal savior. She said to me, " Now I have found my true North." Grace has made peace with God and can lay to rest her confusion and frustration. She thanked me for bringing the Good News of Jesus Christ into her life and was also grateful that we are helping her people through our Video Bible Schools. Thank you for allowing me to go and share with Grace and several others in Bolivia who also professed Christ on this trip. Together we are making a difference.
