

Lee feeding children in garbage dump.

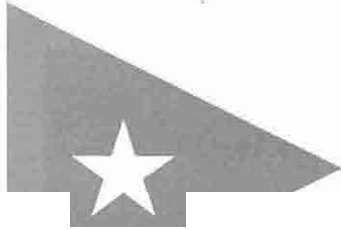

1995 flew by before I had the opportunity to share with you one of the sweet privileges of ministering to needy children. I went to Mexico City and served alongside of Chris and Allison Jones just prior to Charisma Magazine's November article heralding their heroic efforts. The article, entitled "Missionaries Reach Children in 'Living Hell' of Mexico City Slums". My mission was to provide their Mexican Evangelistic staff and children's pastors with video training materials and minister to the children.

That same trip, I taught and challenged students at a Bible School on top of a high mountain. It was awesome as the anointing of God poured out upon them. The Devil was mad. Wind, hail and lightning struck the chapel in a life threatening assault. Lightning bolts ran through the iron beams in the ceiling making cracking and popping noises. While we stood in puddles of water, we smelled the aroma of burning electrical wires. Thank God no one was hurt although one terrified student fainted several times. As our jet took off, an earthquake measuring over 6 on the Richter scale sent shock waves through Mexico City. Thank God there was no loss of life.

Children lined up to be fed at the dump. The air reeked of putrefied garbage.
