We reached a remote Indian reservation in the providence of Tala-manca about 1hour &45 minutes southwest of the Port of Limon. We drove down dirt roads, winding through thick coastal jungle until we reached the village of Suretka. Most of the inhabitants of the village are Bribri Indian. They are a simple people who settle their disputes with the machetes that they carry in their hands to harvest bananas.

They believe that mankind was created by the corn god and birthed by a corn stalk. They are a hard working agrarian people raising corn and bananas. They are steeped in the practice of black magic and witchcraft. This particular village is known for having powerful witch doctors and their fame draws people from all over the world who are seeking physical healing and psychic experiences. The witch doctors use their influence to control this village, persecuting Christians. They have even burned down some of the evangelical churches on the reservation.

A Typical Bribri Indian hut

Your monthly prayers and support have made it possible for us to place several video courses in the hands of a young mother and faithful believer who will be training disciples. Though the spiritual darkness on the reservation is very oppressive, that means the light of the Gospel will shine even brighter. Please pray that God would give Ayza (Her nickname is 'Christie') favor in her village and win the hearts of her people.

Pray that the Bible will be translated into the Bribri language, so that these Indians can clearly understand the Good News of the God of Creation and his plan of salvation for every tribe, kindred, and tongue.
