Pablo Quiñones, a Peruvian church planter, starts churches out of homes. He is currently working in about five different locations among the poor in remote mountain villages around Lima. His strategy reminds me of the old time Methodist circuit riding preachers who pastor multiple congregations. He has a church meeting in his home called "The Gospel of the Kingdom". (El Evangelio del Reino). His home also serves as a Bible school thanks to those of you who support this ministry. We provide him with the video curriculum he uses to train 25 students.

Many of the students he is currently training travel with Pastor Pablo to the other mission churches and work beside the pastor. He glows with the joy of the Lord and is so grateful to be able to train his leadership and make disciples via video. He told me, "The teachings from these materials have been a great blessing because the instructors are wonderful and do a great job, teaching the Word of God very well. This motivates the students to learn more about God. I use these materials in my preaching also." One of his students said, "These Bible expositors are really great teachers and make you understand the Word very clearly."
